GOA POLICE IN THE SERVICE OF THE PEOPLE

8th June is a very significant date in the history of Goa, as it symbolises the transfer of authority from Military Administration to Civil Administration 43 years ago. Police is a very important arm of the Civil Administration, thus Goa Police celebrates this week as Goa Police Day and the entire week as Goa Police Week. During the week, utmost priority has been assigned to development of police community relationship and programmes like plantation of trees in close cooperation with the Forest Department, seminars & meetings for educating the public on road safety & crime prevention awareness etc are conducted. These symbolise our commitment to service, before self while performing our responsibilities in a straight upright and professional manner within parameters of law with utmost transparency without having any fear, favour or prejudice.

Goa Police has made steady progress by adopting various steps to change its motto from being a force to a service. Field Marshall Kitchener has stated that "THERE IS A

GREAT CIVILIZING POWER IN

POLICEMEN". A power, by which, he can make an impact on the society to the extent that he can be instrumental in changing the society. If one goes through the history of Indian Police, there are many instances where Policemen in the line of duty have favourably contributed in bringing about a change in the society.

The Juvenile Justice (Care and protection of Children) Act, 2000 inter- alia prohibits

- ▶ Lodging of children in jails and Police lock-ups and lays down procedure including norms for investigation and trial in cases of juvenile crimes.
- ▶ Publication of names and other details of Juvenile who are involved in any proceeding under the act.
- ▶ Trial of Juveniles with adults.
- ▶ It provides that in matters concerning bail normally a juvenile shall not be denied bail. It also sets out procedure for rehabilitation and social reintegration of Children.

Salient features of the Goa Children's Act, 2003:

- ▶ It takes a holistic view of the child. At present, the child is broken up to a number of parts depending upon which Ministry/Dept. is concerned e.g. Health, Education, and there are very limited linkages. Different legislations and schemes therefore adopt different approaches to dealing primarily with the same issue. What every child really needs is to be seen as a child in totality.
- ▶ The Act clearly enunciates the definition of a child, and the age of a child.

- ▶ It has included 'foetus' as a child.
- ▶ The Act deals equally with children who could be considered to be 'not disadvantaged'.

At present, all initiatives are aimed at the 'disadvantaged' child, forgetting that even other children are facing problems, be it from unsupervised access to the internet (including pornographic sites and material) or heavy pressure in schools, or simply the absence of a playground and other play facilities

- ▶ Certain Provisions on sexual abuse of a child, not contained in the Indian Penal Code, have been incorporated in the Act. A review of all Central legislation is acutely felt. The Act has attempted to identify and include provisions necessary to protect the child in today's times.
- ▶ The provisions of the Directive

Principles of State Policy pertaining to children have been made legally justiciable.

The 93rd Amendment to the Constitution making education a fundamental right is a similar step in enforcing a Directive Principle. The Act goes several steps further and makes all the Directive Principles pertaining to children, a right.

- ▶ The provisions of UN Convention on the Rights of the Child have been made legally justiciable.
- ▶ All Children's Homes shall be registered and regularly inspected.
- ▶ Child labour, including domestic labour, is prohibited.
- ▶ Extensive provisions for protecting a child from child abuse, as it is actually happening, have been incorporated. The Act has taken a bold step in recognizing the actual forms of child abuse which are taking place, and in attempting to prevent them. Onus has been placed on Hotels and other establishments, and on persons "keeping" children with them.
- ▶ Sale of a child, or of a body part/organ of a child, is prohibited.

Certain cases have been reported from other States where children were being kept in orphanages and literally 'bred' for their body parts, including blood. The Act prohibits this.

- ▶ A Child Friendly Tourism Code shall be evolved.

Child Prostitution is prohibited.

- ▶ Dedication of a child is prohibited. It was reported that after Karnataka banned dedication, some families travelled to Goa to carry on the practice here. This point very firmly establishes that efforts to create a Child friendly Society have to be taken by all States.

- ▶ A Children's Fund shall be set up.
- ▶ A State Commission for Children shall be established.

- ▶ A Special Children's Court shall be constituted.

- ▶ Special Provisions for the Girl Child, the Differently Aabled, on Education and on Health and Nutrition have been included.
